JOKED WITH THEIR EXECUTORS

One of Villa's Generals Shot in Juarez Cemetery.

Juarez, Nov. 4.—Gen. Rosario Garcia, a Villa leader, a boy of 17, and a Yaqui Indian, captured at Santa Anna early in the week, were executed by a Carranza firing squad in the historic Juarez cemetery this morning. The men laughed and joked with one another and finally told the soldiers to hurry up and do their work.

MANY MINERS ARE ENTOMBED AT BIRMINGHAM

Believed That Loss of Life Will Be Heavy—Two Bodies Brought to Surface Are Unrecognizable

(Special to The Herald)

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 4.—Sixty or more miners were entombed in the Bessie mines of the Sloss-Sheffield steel and iron company, twenty miles from here, as the result of an explosion which occurred early this morning. More than one half of the miners are whites. Two men were brought to the surface shortly after 8 o'clock. The bodies were badly mangled and were unrecognizable. Five men are known to be dead. Between 25 and 45 men are still in the mine and it is expected that many are killed.

WILL BE PUT IN OPERATION, SUNDAY

Trains Will Be Governed
From Switching Tower at Newburyport.

The new signal tower of the Boston & Maine railroad at Newburyport will be put in operation on Sunday morning and the old ball signals which have controlled the movements of trains in and out of that station done away with. The tower is erected just beyond the site of the old tunnel.

In the second story of the signal building the apparatus is installed, which controls by 40 levers the signals and switches in the railroad yard between the "Junction" and Salisbury. Everything connected with signals and switches is thus controlled and protected by a route lock so that they cannot be changed and therefore is protection against accident.

The approaching train receives a warning over a mile away and if it has a signal thrown up against it, it must stop and wait until it has a clear track, before running into the station. The black levers control switches, the blue the locks and the red the mechanical signals.

The system is operated by high tension electric power from the Newburyport Gas & Electric Co. The levers are easily operated. There is a series of indicators so that there is put in operation an indirect and warning bell in the tower, showing just what the position of all trains is within the scope of its control.

The installation of the system has taken a long time. The work was commenced last May and is just being finished, but it is complete and perfect.

The building is about 20x30 feet and sits high on the northerly bank along the tracks. It is heated by steam, has a full telegraph equipment, connected by telephone and is roomy, sanitary and well adapted for the purpose. The ground floor will be used mainly for storage purposes.

The apparatus is the product of the Union Switch and Signal Co., and was made at Switzdale, Pa. It will be operated by three men, working eight-hour shifts.

MYOPIA HUNT CLUB ON RUN.

The Myopia Hunt Club of Hamilton made its annual run over the Rye course today in large numbers, taking the road from a special train which carried them to North Hampton depot.

LONG AGO MURDER CASE IS RECALLED

By the Death of Mrs. Mary E.
Barrows of Kittery, Oldest Prisoner at Thomaston.

Mary E. Barrows, the oldest prisoner in point of service in the state prison, died Friday at Thomaston, Me., at the age of 71. She was sentenced in York county on Sept. 30, 1884, to be hanged for the murder of her husband but the sentence later was commuted to life imprisonment. She had been in failing health a number of years, due to stomach trouble, and the past six months had been in serious condition. She was born at Kittery.

Thomas Barrows, husband of the woman who has just passed away, was shot and killed in his own home at Kittery on Nov. 13, 1884. At first it was believed to have been a case of suicide but the investigation conducted by Coroner E. C. Nealley convinced him that no man could himself have inflicted the wounds which were in his body; and the coroner ordered the arrest of Mrs. Barrows and her son-in-law, Oscar E. Blaney, who was married to a Miss Cate, a daughter of Mrs. Barrows by a former marriage.

The couple were arrested on Saturday, Nov. 24, and Mrs. Barrows broke down under the examination and confessed the murder, telling that Blaney had shot and killed him in his own bed room at 3:25 o'clock in the evening of Nov. 23. Blaney was later confronted with Mrs. Barrows' confession and he confessed to doing the shooting at her request. He was remanded to Alfred jail on a charge of murder and his mother-in-law was held at the jail as a witness in $20,000 bonds.

Blaney was a section hand on the Portsmouth and Dover R. R. when he married Mrs. Barrows' daughter and was considered little better than a tramp by neighbors. Blaney admitted having killed the man because he and Barrows had always been bad friends, Barrows fearing that in case of his wife's death the property in her possession would go to Blaney and his wife.

They were tried at Alfred, Mr. Blaney for murder and Mrs. Barrows as an accessory before the fact. Both were found guilty and were sentenced to be hanged by Judge Virgin, the date of the execution being set for the third Friday in December. Sentence was passed on Sept. 30. The sentence of both Blaney and Mrs. Barrows were later commuted to life imprisonment. Blaney died several years later in the state prison.

Since her imprisonment an appeal has been made to practically every governor in Maine for a pardon but has always been refused. Blaney, in his confession said that he had bought the cartridges at the store of A. P. Wendell & Co., in this city, purchasing the revolver at Dover. He loaded the gun at his own home and fired one shot while on the road to Barrows' home to make certain that the gun was in good working order.

FIGHTING IN THE ROUMANIAN THEATRE OF WAR

Gen. Von Falkenhayn Has Received Reinforcements of Both Men and Guns.

(Special to The Herald)

Petrograd, Nov. 4.—Austro-German pressure in the Roumanian theatre of war is now concentrated on Canopu long to wrest it from its Russian and Roumanian defenders. Gen. Von Falkenhayn has received reinforcements of both men and guns.

Southwest of Predal and southeast of Rotherthurn pass where the Tenthic forces are raining their heaviest blows, it is officially admitted that the Austro-Germans have gained ground, but have lost ground in the Jutul valley.

WELL KNOWN EDUCATOR IS DEAD

Dr. Moffatt Was President of Washington and Jefferson
College for 30 Years.

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Pa., Nov. 4.—Dr. Jas. Davis Moffatt, president emeritus of Washington and Jefferson college died here today after an illness of four days, following a stroke of paralysis. Dr. Moffatt was president for thirty years, retiring in 1915. He was 70 years old.

NEW ARTILLERY COMMANDER ARRIVES

Major Monroe, U. S. A., who is to succeed Major Wallace as commander of the Portsmouth artillery district arrived on Friday. Major Monroe has been stationed at New London, Conn. ### OFFICIALS CALL HAWAII CLIMATE ENERVATING

San Francisco, Nov. 4.—Hawaii, with its crimson dawns and purple twilights, its "wonderous" Waikiki beach, its azure sea and other delights apparently doesn't appeal to certain members of the postoffice department's force. As witness this announcement:

"Because of the many protests of officials against being obliged to live in the enervating climate of Hawaii, the position of postoffice inspector there has been abolished. Hereafter inspectors will be assigned there for special duty of from thirty to sixty days. No one will be obliged to remain there permanently."

POSTAL TELEGRAPH TO RECEIVE THE RETURNS

On next Tuesday night, Nov. 7, Manager Leakey of the Postal Telegraph will notify you who will be president of the United States for the next four years. He has arranged for the benefit of all citizens of Portsmouth and surrounding places to get all the news in relation to election returns. There will be a telegraph instrument and special operators located in the following clubs: The Elks' Home, Warwick Club and the Democratic Club. The Portsmouth Athletic Club will also have the election bulletins.

P. A. C. WILL HAVE SERIES OF WHIST NIGHTS

The Athletic club is to start a series of whist nights, with prizes for each night's play. President Coleman and the board of directors are planning a live social programme for the winter months.

Steamer Connemara Cut in Two By Collision With Steamer Retriever in the Irish Sea

(Special to The Herald)

London, Nov. 4.—At least 100 lives were lost last night when the steamer Connemara and the ocean tug Retriever were in collision during a hurricane off the coast of Ireland. Early reports said there were 300 passengers on the Connemara, but a dispatch from the railroad officials received this afternoon states there were only 67 passengers aboard the Connemara. Both steamers sank before life boats could be lowered.

The only survivor is said to be James Doyle of the Retriever.

London, Nov. 4.—One hundred lives were lost in a collision in the Irish sea when the passenger liner Connemara from Holyhead to Greenore was cut in two by a collision with the steamer Retriever. The collision took place last night in the middle of the Irish Sea.

Of the one hundred passengers on the Connemara only one was saved, according to the report that reached here. Admiralty vessels have been ordered to the scene to search for victims. The majority of the victims are men.

An early report says the Connemara sank so quickly that there was no chance to launch the lifeboats. The Retriever was so cold that those who were able to secure life preservers could live but a short time.

A later report states that the Retriever also soon went down. The latter was owned by the London and Northwestern railroad and was used to transport passengers between England and Ireland. The Connemara was a steel vessel of 333 tons and was built in 1897. A dispatch from Dublin says bodies of the victims are coming ashore at County Down.

So far as can be learned all of the victims were inhabitants of the British Isles as the steamer did not carry any saloon passengers. The agents state so far as they know there were no Americans on the vessels.

The officers of the railway have been besieged by persons seeking information as to relatives and friends who were supposed to be on the ill-fated steamer. All of the replies so far from the officials are to the effect that they have no list of passengers.

GERMAN RAID OFF ENGLAND

Capture Two Boats in Dutch
Trade Route—Others Searched.

Berlin, Nov. 4, by wireless to Sayville—A raid was made by German naval small craft on the shipping route between the mouth of the Thames and Holland on Wednesday night. The admiral announced today. Several steamers were stopped and searched and two of them were brought into a German port. The raiders were fruitlessly shelled by four British cruisers while they were returning. The official statement reads:

"On the night of November 1-2, small German naval vessels advanced from points of support on the coast of Flanders against the trade routes between the Thames and Holland. They stopped and searched several steamers and brought two of them, which were suspicious into port. A third steamer, which was ordered to follow has not yet arrived.

"As they were returning some of our torpedo boats were shelled for a brief time without success by four British cruisers. Our naval forces all returned safely."

STATE NEWS

Hearing on Dover Hotel Liquor Case.
Concord, Nov. 4.—The excise commission yesterday gave a hearing on the complaint brought against the Stratford Inn at Dover, which, it is alleged, sold liquor to guests not bona fide guests. John J. Shea is proprietor of the establishment and his interests were being taken care of by George Hughes of Dover. Attorney General James P. Tuttle appeared for the state.

Death of Miss A. G. Wood.
Concord, Nov. 4.—Miss Annie Greenfield Wood, assistant superintendent of nurses at the New Hampshire State hospital, who was connected with that institution since 1889, died there yesterday morning. Funeral services were held in the chapel of the institution Friday evening, conducted by Rev. W. C. Meyers, and her body was taken to her native place, River Street, N. S., for burial.

Charged With Break.
Hochester, Nov. 4.—Stephen Swaine, aged about 20, claiming Nashua as his home, was held in $100 bail by Judge Samuel D. Falker in police court yesterday on the charge of breaking and entering into the City Building on Wednesday afternoon. Swaine, it is charged broke in the door to the ladies' parlor in the City Building and was taking some chairs when discovered by Special Officer Eugene Bennett.

Being unable to furnish bond, he was taken to the county jail at Dover. He has been reported as acting rather strangely of late.

Falls From Wagon and Breaks Rib.
Mount Vernon, Nov. 4.—As Miss Emmaline Conant was leaving the general store, in some unaccountable manner she fell head first from her wagon and the team ran over her, badly cutting her forehead, breaking ribs and causing other serious injuries. She was taken to Harry Brook's home and a doctor called who attended to her injuries. Later, on a mattress in an auto truck, she was taken to her home.

Ask Reduction in Fire Rates.
Laconia, Nov. 4.—Mayor George P. Munsey and Chief Engineer Arthur W. Spring have been in conference with the state board of fire underwriters, urging that the board, now that Laconia has voted to purchase a fire truck give the city due consideration and lower the fire insurance rates, on account of the increased protection against conflagrations.

The members of the state board are to take the matter under consideration and will make a detailed inspection of the fire risks in this city at an early date.

RIFLE CLUB TALKS OVER PLANS

A meeting was held in Christ church Friday evening on the rifle club at Portsmouth. There were about 15 or 20 young men present. Three new members were elected to membership and plans talked over for the completion of the indoor range in the cellar of the church. C. P. Wyatt, the executive officer, gave a few instructions in the manner of holding the rifle and the use of the sling as a means of holding the gun steady and of the different positions required at the different ranges and the manner in which the rifleman would attain these the easiest. Mr. Morris over the meeting. Father Le V. Brine, the secretary, offered his aid in the arrangement of the cellar. The next meeting will be held in the church on Friday evening, November 11th at 8 o'clock. Any one interested in invited to be present.

CROSS, FEVERISH CHILD IS BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated give "California Syrup of Figs."

Every mother realizes, after giving her children "California Syrup of Figs," that this is their ideal laxative, because they love its pleasant taste and it thoroughly cleanses the tender little stomach, liver and bowels without gripping.

When cross, irritable, feverish or breath is bad, stomach sour, look at the tongue, mother! If coated, give a teaspoonful of this harmless "fruit laxative" and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. When its little system is full of cold, throat, sore, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, indigestion, colic, remember, a good "inside cleansing" should always be the first treatment given.

Millions of mothers keep "California Syrup of Figs" handy; they know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeiters sold here, so don't be fooled. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company."

PREDICTION A LANDSLIDE FOR GOVERNOR HUGHES

Based his prediction upon telegraphic reports from about three hundred chairmen of local branches of the Hughes National College League in the larger cities of the country and over five thousand letters from individuals received during the past five days, George Brookman, Compton, national campaign manager of the league, gave out a forecast yesterday which gave Hughes 353 electoral votes to 149 for President Wilson, with 24 doubtful.

He conceded only two states to President Wilson outside of the "Solid South"—Kentucky and Oklahoma. He put Missouri, generally regarded as doubtful, in the Republican column with a plurality of 25,000, and predicted that Hughes might even carry Kentucky, which has been carried by the Republicans four times in the last twenty years, and went Democratic last year by about twenty votes out of a total of 460,000.

"The five pivotal states in this election are Illinois, Indiana, New York, New Jersey and Ohio," said Compton. "The greatest percentage of the Progressive vote that President Wilson could possibly poll in any state is 20 per cent. This is an outside estimate, but conceding him that much of the Progressive vote cast in Illinois four years ago Hughes will carry the state by 80,000. A large but silent independent vote and a very large Democratic vote that will go to Hughes will more than double this plurality."

"If President Wilson received 20 per cent of the Progressive votes of four years ago in Indiana, he would barely carry the state but he won't receive any such percentage. In addition to this he has antagonized a large proportion of the population of this state by his foreign policies."

"New York is safely Republican without a question. It would go Republican under any circumstances, but the magnificent campaign throughout the state conducted by Governor Whitman has made assurance doubly sure."

"New Jersey would be very close if President Wilson polled 20 per cent of the Progressive votes, but he will not come any where close to that figure. The chairman of our branch in that state, estimate from 35,000 to 50,000 plurality for Hughes."

"Ohio is likely to be very close, but again conceding 20 per cent of the Progressive vote for President Wilson, Hughes would carry the state by about 9,000 votes."

"A very significant element in the situation is the fact established by numerous polls taken by the league; that thousands who voted for Wilson in 1912, particularly Democrats, not only in the south but in every state, in the union are expressing their intention of voting this year for Mr. Hughes. For every one who openly expresses such an intention, ten or fifteen do so secretly."

"During the past ten days, a ground swell for Hughes that is moving just rapidly enough to reach its height on November 7 and sweep the Republican candidate into office, and that will barely fail to break into the 'Solid South' for him, has been steadily rolling up votes for Hughes. The labor vote will be divided between the two candidates, but far more laboring men than most suspect have detected the fallacy of the Adamson law and have familiarized themselves with Mr. Hughes' absolutely fair record in labor matters while the governor of New York. And everybody remembers, sufficiently clearly the first six months of the Democratic tariff in peace time to dread a repetition of the hard times it brought. The Republican record, with their electoral votes is as follows:

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Nov. 4.—Prominent legislators are sounding a warning that eleven hour misrepresentations and distortions of the constitutional convention and the initiative and referendum are being uttered. Evidence fact, there is a well organized movement to defeat the convention by the special interests who are well content with things as they are crumbling out, according to these men. There is also the conviction that a very large percentage of the people do not understand the two vital questions at issue—and that they lack interest just because of this condition. Whether or not the people want a constitutional convention in order to moderate their constitution and whether or not they want their constitution changed so that they may have the initiative and referendum means but little to a great many voters they say. Governor McCall says: "Make it an epoch in the history of Massachusetts by voting for the constitutional convention expresses the attitude of at least a large majority of the great public leaders."

New England physicians will soon have a chance to join the army, in their professional capacity. More than 1100 medical officers will be needed for the U. S. army next year. Within a short time Uncle Sam will send out a call to the doctors of the country to take examinations on January 2, 1917, in various parts of the country to fill the vacancies created by the present legislation of congress which is called the most important piece of medical legislation in relation to army service, which has ever been passed. The new act will increase the medical corps from 443 to 1553 medical officers.

"Because they were put on rations and taught the value of hygienic food since the European war was declared, the Belgians, in fact the people of all the warring nations, have better health today than when peace prevailed," said Dr. Lily Burbank of the State Board of Health in an address before the Ladies' Aid of the Soldiers' Home. "People as a rule should eat more food in bulk with a low caloric value than they do now," she declared. "If men and women are more regularly, took sufficient rest, led active, but not too strenuous lives, enjoyed in certain amount of recreation, they would not age so rapidly, and there would be fewer invalids. Rest intelligently, and sleep eight or nine hours and you can retain youth much longer than the average woman."

Colonel Cyrus H. Adams, director of prisons, states that the prison population of Massachusetts has been reduced nearly one-third by the probation system in effect in this state. In his opinion probation will eventually make prisons and reformatory matters while the governor of New York. And everybody remembers, sufficiently clearly the first six months of the Democratic tariff in them social benefactors. Massachusetts is a leader in probation methods, but the western states are in a good position to pass the pacemakers, and we must keep up our good work."

In the last half century, and is just as good for sciatica, neuralgia, lumbago, backache, sprains, and in just a moment you'll be free. It awaits you. "St. Jacob's Oil" has cured millions of rheumatism sufferers from rheumatic pain, soreness, stiffness and swelling. Don't suffer! Re-

The repairing of the old Constitution at the Charlestown navy yard will cost it is estimated, $150,000. In the last naval bill an appropriation was made for repairing this old time warship that never suffered defeat, and to complete the repairs it will be necessary to put the ship in drydock. The work will not be begun until early in the spring. "Old Ironsides" was last put in drydock in Portsmouth in the year 1897.

LIQUOR CASES HEARD.

Two Complaints Before the Excise Board on Friday.

The license commission gave a hearing at Concord on Friday on the complaints against Crosby & Joyce of Manchester and John J. Shea of the Stratford Inn of Dover. Crosby & Joyce are charged with sending liquor to persons not licensees in no-license territory. The Dover hotel was charged with selling to persons not bona fide registered guests.

Chief of Police Wilkinson, Officers Tuttle and Lathrop of Dover testified in the case of Shea who was defended by Attorney George T. Hughes.

WARNING TO VOTERS.

Be Careful in Marking Ballot or It May Not Be Counted.

The law enacted in 1915 restoring the circle at the top of the ballot was designed to do away with independent voting, designed to take away the right of a voter to vote for some candidate in another column whom he wishes to vote for. It will not be counted for his choice for that particular office unless he at the same time draws a line through the name of the candidate for that office in the column marked in the circle.

PUBLIC WORKS BOARD GIVEN ITS TRANSFER

Council Passed Resolution Granting $2,766.67
Additional Funds Over the Mayor's Veto

By a vote of eight to two in the city council last evening the council overruled the veto of the Mayor in the special bills, passed on Thursday, Oct. 26, which gave to the Board of Public Works the sum of $2,766.67 with which to carry on their work until the end of the year. Mayor Ladd vetoed the bill on Thursday evening and the meeting was called by him for Friday at the request of several members of the council when it became known by them that the Board must suspend operations unless the transfers made by the resolution were allowed. Voting for the bill were Councilmen Berthwick, Matthews, Raynes, Patterson, Smart, and Wood. Voting to sustain the veto were Councilmen Berry and Sullivan. Councilman Hitt of ward 1 was not in attendance at the meeting and was the only absentee.

Following the reading of a veto message Councilman Matthews spoke at length in favor of passing the resolutions, making it a point that the best interests of the city demanded that the work proceed along its regular lines; that the Board had, even with this additional sum, conducted their work to date within their real appropriation, that the finance committee had cut them $9,000 in their appropriation from the sum submitted as the amount necessary to carry on the work for the year. This sum will left the present board with the year's work provided for at a saving of nearly $6,000 over the sum spent in 1916.

The total transfers in the street department resolution passed at the special meeting is $2,766.67, $250 comes from a sum already in the board, from unexpended park payrolls; $1,084.71, from the contingent fund and $1,431.96 from discount of taxes for 1916, making the total of $2,766.67. The money is to be divided as follows in the highway department:

Streets
Payroll	1,000.00
Asphalt	450.00
Material & Supplies	100.00
Auto Expense	100.00

ITALIANS HAVE ANNIHILATED BATTALIONS OF AUSTRIANS

London, Nov. 3.—A Rome dispatch to the Wireless Press says the first day of the new Italian offensive cost the Austrians the loss of 15,000 men. One-third of them were made prisoners, the dispatch says.

(The Italian war office yesterday reported that 4731 prisoners had been taken.)

The 21st Austrian regiment and several battalions are said to have been annihilated.

The weather is favorable and the battle against the heights east of Gorizia and on the Carso continues fiercely. Austrian counter-attacks are described in the dispatches as feeble.

Make Gain of Mile Through Austrian Line

Rome, Nov. 3.—Consecutive waves of Italian infantry are crashing against the Austrian lines south of Gorizia in one of the most powerful blows struck by Gen. Cadorna since Italy entered the war.

Following up their successes south-east of Gorizia the Italians have occu-pled a mile of the Goritz-Vogersko rail way and are battling on the heights near Kemperlsee. It was in this region that the majority of the 4731 prisoners reported in yesterday's official statement were captured.

Further south, the Italian centre broke through the Austrian lines for an advance of nearly a mile east of Oppachiasella. The artillery attack on the enemy's lines reached its greatest violence in this region. The Austrian defenses were pulverized and attacking infantry rounded up groups of dazed enemy soldiers.

The battle is extending southward to the Adriatic. The Italians are attacking Austrian lines northwest of Udine, an important railway point held by some military writers the key to Trieste.

The opinion prevails here that Gen. For any pain, burn, scald or bruise, apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil—the household remedy. Two sizes, 25c and 50c at all drug stores.

Cadorna is preparing to strike a death blow.

French Official Statement
Paris, Nov. 3.—Today's official announcement follows:

"On the right bank of the Meuse (Verdun front) the night was relatively calm. Yesterday the enemy, owing to the violence of our bombardment, which had continued several days, evacuated Fort Vaux during the afternoon without waiting for an attack by our infantry, whose pressure was becoming closer and closer."

"Very heavy explosions were heard in the fort. During the night our infantry, which had gone up quite close to the fort, occupied this very important work without any loss. The belt of interior forts of Verdun is now re-established in its entirety and is held firmly by our troops."

"There is nothing to report from the remainder of the front."

"The Meuse front statement follows:

"On the left bank of the Struma British troops, following up their successes, have taken by assault the village of Alitza."

"On the remainder of the front there was intermittent cannonading without infantry action."

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

Pape's Diapepsin is noted for its speed in giving relief; its harmlessness; its certain unfailing action in regulating sick, sour, gassy stomachs. Its millions of cures, in indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and other stomach trouble has made it famous the world over.

Keep this perfect stomach doctor in your home—keep it handy—get a large fifty-cent case from any drug store and then if anyone should eat something which doesn't agree with them; if what they eat lays like lead, ferments and sours and forms gas; causes headache, dizziness and nausea; eruptions of acid and undigested food—remember as soon as Pape's Diapepsin comes in contact with the stomach all such distress vanishes. Its promptness, certainty and ease in overcoming the worst stomach disorders is a revelation to those who try it.

THE WIND-BARREN

Night is on the downland, on the lonely moorland,
On the hills where the wind goes over the sheep-bitten turf.
Where the bent grass beats upon the unploughed peatland
And the pine woods roar like the surf.

Here the Roman lived on the wind-barren lonely,
Dark and hunted by the moon-hand fowl;
None goes there now but the peewee only,
And moth-like death in the owl.

Beauty was here, on this beetle-droning downland;
The thought of a Caesar in the purple came
From the palace by the Tiber in the Roman townland
To this wind-swept hill with no name.

Lonely beauty came here and was here in sadness,
Brave as a thought on the frontier of the mind,
In the camp of the wild upon the march of madness,
The bright-eyed Queen of the Blind.

Now where Beauty was the wind-withered gorse
Moaning like old men in the hill-wind's blast,
The flying sky is dark with running horses
And the night is full of the past—
John Mansfield in the Yale Review.

THIS MANEUVER WILL TAKE IN 25,000 MEN.

Brownsville, Texas, Nov. 3.—Brig. Gen. James Parker announced today a war maneuver early in December, in which 25,000 soldiers of the Brownsville, San Benito and Llano Grande camps will participate. An imaginary force will land at Point Isabel and march to attack Llano Grande. It will be met by the force named and retire to the coast, where the final "battle" will be fought. The maneuver will require two weeks.

A conference of pastors and delegates of the Congregational churches of this region of New Hampshire, was held in the North Church chapel on Friday. The discussions were led by two of the national secretaries of the denomination, Rev. Charles E. Burton and Rev. Frank W. Hodgdon. The general subject was the program adopted by the National Council in view of the Tercentenary celebration of the landing of the Pilgrims church at Plymouth to be observed in 1921. There was a large attendance of delegates who were served dinner in the Rockingham Cafe. Secretary Burton, who remained over until evening, spoke to a large congregation of local people in the chapel.

UNCLE SAM TELLS HOW TO CLEAN SILVER

Washington, Nov. 3.—Government specialists in home economics after several months' study of how to clean tarnished silverware, today issued through the Department of Agriculture a special bulletin of vital interest to millions of American housewives. The procedure recommended is so simple that it may be followed successfully in practically every home.

The easy cleaning method is simply boiling the dirty silver in a soda and salt solution in contact with a clean piece of aluminum or zinc.

The tarnish on silver is not due to oxidation, but is dependent entirely upon the action of sulphur, the bulletin states. In most cases the source of the sulphur causing tarnish is rubber, wool, fends like eggs, and the sulphur in the air due to burning illuminating gas and coal.

This tarnish of silver sulphid is slightly soluble in the hot solution employed. It is broken down chemically and its silver content, redeposited on the ware when the proper electrical conditions prevail. The presence of both the silver and the aluminum or zinc in the hot solution provides the necessary electrical conditions. Under this method, therefore, practically all the silver in the tarnish is returned to the object being cleaned. When silver polishers are used, on the other hand, all the silver in combination in the tarnish is removed.

In the cleaning method recommended by the Department the necessary materials are a graniteware cooking utensil deep enough to allow the silverware to be covered by the solution; a clean piece of aluminum or zinc preferably the former; and baking or washing soda. The solution, consisting of a teaspoonful of baking or washing soda and a like amount of table salt to each quart of water, is brought to a boil in a graniteware or enameled utensil. A sheet of aluminum or clean zinc is dropped in. The tarnished silverware is then immersed in the solution so that it is in contact with the sheet of aluminum or zinc. The tarnish should disappear in a few seconds. The silver object should then be removed from the solution, rinsed, and dried with a soft cloth.

Aluminum is much more satisfactory than zinc for use in this cleaning process since it does not become coated with a layer of carbonates which would interfere with the chemical reaction. Zinc does form carbonates and if used, must be cleaned frequently in dilute hydrochloric acid.

Utensils which would later be used in cooking operations should never be employed in cleaning silverware by the electrolytic method. If very large pieces of silver are to be cleaned and a container is required larger than can be placed conveniently on the stove, the hot solution may be poured into such a vessel and the silver object then immersed. The method is most effective however when the solution boils during the cleaning process.

The electrolytic method gives the cleaned silver a satiny finish after several cleanings. If a burnished surface is desired, the silver must from time to time be polished lightly with some abrasive polishing material such as powdered whiting.

Charles Dillingham's plan is to reproduce exactly the great pageant which broke all records at the big playhouse in New York last season. All the great stars and all the brilliant features have been retained.

John Phillip Sousa and his band head the remarkable organization, which is the largest that has ever toured America. It will also include Charlotte, the marvelous skating queen, together with the other imported ice skaters from the Admiral's Palace, Berlin. They will be seen in "Flirting at St. Moritz," a feature which last season was credited with starting the skating craze in America.

Others among the principals are Nat. M. Willis, the famous comedian; C. T. Aldrich, the comedy magician; Harry Westford, Beth Smalley, Albert Fromm, William G. Stewart, the Bogannys, the Amaranths, Lamy Brothers, Malina and Bart and an array of other European and native specialties, which include the baby elephant, Chin-Chin, and the ponies and horses.

There will be 400 in the ensemble—mostly pretty girls—and the entire organization, it is said, will be the most pretentious that any theatrical producer has tried to take on tour.

Despite the colossal nature of this production, and as indicating Manager Lawrence McCarthy's policy of low prices, the scale for the daily matinees (except Saturday) will be 25c to $1.00 and $2.00 will be the highest price for the night performances. The seat sale opens on Tuesday, Nov. 7, and mail orders received prior to that date will be filed in the order of their receipt and filled when the public sale opens. Seats may also be had at the downtown office, Steinert's, 162 Boylston street.

Making Law a Farce.

More than once this paper has commented on the too prevailing tendency to convert the enforcement of the law into a farce. Men who ought to be sent to jail are released on probation, and many who are landed behind the bars are set at liberty before the expiration of their terms. It sometimes seems as if all the forces of the social machinery are being exerted to save offenders against the laws from the prescribed penalties for their misdoings.

And now comes a dispatch from Philadelphia reporting a most flagrant case of what may properly be called "monkeying" with the law. A boy 14 years old was before the juvenile court charged with stealing a fish and a chicken and riding away with them on a horse which he also stole. On this trip he had the fish under one arm and the chicken under the other. The evidence was complete and the boy was convicted in spite of the efforts of his "counsel," whose only defense was an attempt to belittle the performance. He told the court that this was simply a new form of "joy ride." The judge said he couldn't see much joy in that kind of a ride, and then he and the boy's lawyer entered into negotiations. The lawyer agreed to take the same kind of a ride through one of the city streets if the judge would let the boy go, and the latter assented to the ridiculous proposition. A horse, fish and chicken were procured, the lawyer strode the animal and, with the fish under one arm and the chicken under the other, rode through one of the principal streets, the judge and the young culprit having taken a position in the crowd to witness the silly spectacle. When the rider passed the judge slapped the boy on the shoulder, told him he was free and said he hoped he would not get into trouble again.

This was all very funny, to be sure, but what effect must such a performance have upon a boy of 14 years? He has seen a very serious matter turned into a joke, and the effect can readily be imagined.

And yet there are those who contend that one of the chief troubles with criminal procedure in this country is a lack of statistics. It is nothing of the sort. The trouble is maudlin sentiment and the disposition to assume that the criminal is just as good as anybody else if only "given a chance." If this boy had been properly punished he might have been reformed. If what was done does not make him worse it will be a wonder.

A Massachusetts hotel keeper has been fined and sentenced to jail for violation of the liquor laws. "Prominent citizens" interceded in the man's behalf and called the attention of the court to his "excellent reputation," but as his record contained two previous convictions the judge could not see his way clear to let him off this time. It is plain that "prominent citizens" are not beyond making fools of themselves on occasion.

An eastern college football team traveling in the West has had some hotel troubles to contend with because two of its members are negroes. But it was a western college that only a few years ago excluded negroes, not because they were not good students, but because of the prejudice against their color. This prejudice makes difficult the rise of the colored race, but in spite of it the race is steadily progressing.

A Pennsylvania dog has attached himself to a parcel post outfit and assumed the task of defending the contents of the vehicle while the driver is making deliveries. For this service the postmaster general has presented the dog with a suitably inscribed collar. And this collar is more respectable than those that are worn by some of the servants of Uncle Sam. There is not a shred of politics in it.

Harvard university has introduced a course for the training of policemen. Will the time come when ditch diggers and street shovelers will have to have diplomas in order to get jobs? It sometimes seems as if this country was in danger of "runnin' to em'lyin's," as the saying goes.

The postmasters of the country have been notified from headquarters that liquors are strictly barred from the mails. And this after all that has been said about the parcel post bringing down the cost of living.

If you are a voter you will have a duty to perform next Tuesday, no matter what your beliefs or to what party you belong. If you are an American citizen stand up like one and do your duty.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

The "American Air Corps"

(From the Boston Transcript.)

Mr. Lansing finds it to be his duty to solicit the French Government, as he had previously solicited the British Government in the case of the "American Legion," not to employ officially the term "American Air Corps" in referring to what is really a corps of American fliers in the French service. The State Department is right in making this request, for our nation is neutral in this war, and the official presence of "American" corps on either side would at least qualify the record of neutrality. Yet in connection with these two corps, the American fliers in France and the American-Canadian battalion, a big outstanding fact has to be noted. American citizens are as free to join one side as the other in the great conflict. There are American citizens on the German side. But it is only on the Allies' side that there are enough of them to constitute a "corps" or a "legion" of any kind. The proportions are pretty fairly indicated by the fact that when, the other day, Harvard University honored its nineteen graduates and undergraduates who have lost their lives in service in European armies, only one brave boy was found to have died in the German service. All the rest had perished fighting or working for Britain and France. The Harvard commemoration, therefore, though no discrimination was made, necessarily turned out to be a tribute to the spirit which rallied Americans to the side of the Entente Allies and chiefly to the service of the French republic. As this brilliant and striking devotion, this pure and voluntary sacrifice does not, in the case of France, rest upon any "tie of race and language," any call of that blood which is said to be thicker than water, the inference is plain that some deep moral influence, some conviction of duty lying at the bottom of the heart of the American people, must account for the fact that there is an "American Aviation Corps" in the French Service and none in that of Germany.

Undoubtedly the French Government will comply with the request of the American Government and exclude the American name from its communications. So much as that is owed to our neutrality. But in the speech of men, their name will remain forever, because it is the truth. The word "American" will stick to the pages of French history with a tenacity as intense, a radiance as bright as that with which the names of Lafayette and Rochambeau cling to American history. There is no government in the world powerful enough to get it out of the great record. It is there to stay and to shine. It is to France that the passion the heroism of American youth has been drawn, and thither it has been drawn because our nation itself has been aroused to such a feeling of admiration and sympathy that the call has been irresistible.

The French speech is the most logical and accurate in the world. It is immemorially in the habit of calling things by their true names. If France has named this flying corps American it is because it is American. No matter the French Government is courteous. It is careful in all matters of diplomatic scruple. It must make the American aviation corps French. It will but honor itself the more, and the American boys who have gone to fly for France, though they will never cease to be Americans, will shed a new ray of glory upon the honor of the French name. For that, when the record is made up, they will not be sorry.

Picking Flaws in Pater

(From the Minneapolis Journal.)

There is a Boston Irishman with a book "Workmanship in Words," that gives the examples of shipwreck English from the approved masters, Walter Pater, Matthew Arnold, Cardinal Newman, John Ruskin, and others. It is a thing easy to do. No doubt, a purist can find mistakes in the pages of any writer. In fact, the greatest mistakes have been also the greatest violations of language.

But what ticks us is to have a fall taken out of Walter Pater, the impeccable Oxford don. We have heard so much of the faultless Pater and so much of Pater that is nothing except faultless, that it is self-satisfying to have the arch-purist called by one of his own ilk. Verily, all things come round. If one waits long enough.

The late Samuel Butler, the Victorian Kipling, whose novel, "The Way of All Flesh," was won for him posthumous renown, compared the style of Walter Pater to the countenance of an emmetted old woman. How delicious. And we wonder what the leonidistic, unafraid Rebecca West of England

CURRENT OPINION

Farmers of America Are the Most Intelligent and Capable in the World.

I am optimistic about the future of American agriculture. We still have vast undeveloped resources. Our farmers are the most alert and capable in the world. They do not produce more per acre than any other farmers in the world—it would be foolish for them to undertake to do so—but they do produce from two to six times more per man, per unit of labor and capital.

They use more and better machinery. They have the assistance of more powerful, practical and scientific agencies. No other three nations in the world combined have as powerful forces aiding the farmers as this nation has. The land grant colleges and experiment stations are without parallel. Their great ally, the department of agriculture, is unquestionably the greatest practical and scientific agricultural organization in the world.

Great numbers of farmers and of farmers' organizations are alert, intelligent and acting vigorously for the betterment of the life of the nation.

There never has been any real substantial competition with the American farmer. It is not threatening today, and I am not in the slightest degree apprehensive about the future, and one does not compliment the intelligence of the American farmer who attempts to alarm him.

My plea is that business men enlist for more active duty in the struggle for rural improvement. The call for unselfish service is insistent, and I am confident it will not fall upon deaf ears.—By D. F. Houston, Secretary of Agriculture.

blinks or has ever said of Walter Pater and his boricome classic, "Marius the Epicurean." It is a sort of denatured Gaudier, the recitation of the action of an English clerical soul in a Roman body. Marius isn't decently pagan, and is markedly Christian. And the style of it is too delectable, like that chemical substitute for sugar, that makes even candles too sweet.

Also Exterminating Germans

(From the Syracuse Post-Standard.)

"French tenacity," says Hildebrand, "is exterminating the French army." Still the French do not seem to mind, so why should the Germans worry?

The Generous Consumer Pays

(From the Detroit Free Press.)

When the miners of anthracite and bituminous coal were demanding wage increases during the early months of this year, it was pointed out by a few observers that advances in the cost of producing the commodity would eventually be reflected in advances in the price of the commodity, and that the consumer would pay the extra wages. A good many people did not realize this at the time. Today the public is paying the extra wages; unfortunately for clear understanding of economic questions by the public there is no reminder of what happened eight months ago and the general disposition is to attribute the present situation in the coal market to other causes, such as shortage, the war and various influences.

These influences play their part, no doubt—some of them, at least. But they are incidental and fortuitous for the most part, casual rather than causal. Coal prices would be up this winter if there were no war and if the trade had plenty of facilities for transporting the product of the mines. It is impossible to increase production cost of anything without increasing also the selling cost.

Now this comment on a particular phase of our industrial affairs is not in any way a reflection on those engaged in the coal industry of the United States, nor is it a disapproval of effort to improve the working conditions of the miners as a part of the working class of the country. Exactly the same consequences follow wage increases in any line of employment and one would be a shortsighted being indeed who would deny the betterment of conditions among any class of the people of whom we are all a part and upon the prosperity of all of whom the welfare of each of us depends. Two points ought to be borne in mind, however. One is that increasing wages is not a cure for the evils of high prices, because it aggravates those evils. The other is that it is well for all of us to realize that we cannot be generous to others without expecting to pay in money for our generosity.

Some part of the present coal prices is unquestionably due to last spring's advance of wages. Whatever part it is represents the cost of the good-hearted spirit we all felt when we wanted to see the miners get the money. Let us not protest because the inevitable bill has come in for the generosity we felt so long ago that we have forgotten we ever felt it.

COLONIAL THEATRE

Next week will see intrenched at the Colonial one of the most unique groups of players ever seen in Portsmouth. This is Roman's Musical Tabloid Company, which while it is essentially a musical comedy company, at the same time injects more novelty and unexpected features into their offerings than the usual popular priced musical comedy company.

There are some fourteen or more people in the company, a fair proportion of them pretty and shapely young ladies, the Roman chorus.

They will give three musical plays through the week and every one replete with the highest class fun and melodies.

Eddie Flavell, one of the best known popular priced comedians now before the public will lead the laugh-making element in the company, which further has a grand array of musical talent in the vocal sense.

A picture show worth while will accompany every change of comedy, and "The Purple Lady," one of the features for the first two days of the coming week is a most remarkable bit of photography. This is a five-reel Metro subjects, one of the famous "Wonderplays."

SACRIFICED BY NEGLECT

David James Burrell, of New York, referring to Woodrow Wilson's advice to Americans to go out and conquer the commerce of the world (while Europe conquers our domestic commerce) tells this story:

"I happen to be connected with two incorporated boards that have vested rights in foreign lands. One of these is entrusted with the management of a college at old Isonium and the other with the carrying on of an orphan asylum at Marashi. In Asia, Minor. These boards are constituted of American citizens who hold these properties under the assured protection of American and international law. They have invested their funds for these educational and benevolent enterprises with the full consent and sanction of our government and with the understanding that there were solemn treaties which would protect the men carrying them on."

Mr. Burrell then describes how both these institutions were broken up by the Turkish troops two years ago, the president of the college deported, the boys driven into the army, and the girls into harems, and when he appealed to the State Department at Washington, in person and by correspondence, the only answer he received was:

"We can do nothing; what would you do?"

"And this is the humiliating fact," says Mr. Burrell, "that the Turks simply laugh at us."

Oh, it is a fine thing to be an American citizen, provided one is safely ensconced in the country home of a millionaire Democrat, but are the missionaries and Christian folk who "baptize for the Lord" in foreign lands particularly impressed with the patently yelping of the Democrats. "He kept us out of war?"

A firm stand two years ago would have saved the college of Isonium and the asylum of Marashi.

Missouri Coming Back

The late Senator Warner, of Missouri, was a sterling Republican and won his party's honors worthily. He was the first Republican Senator whom Missouri sent to Washington since the days of Carl Schurz, and his term expired five years ago. Now Missouri is preparing to send another Republican Senator to Washington, a Republican as viable, as active, as tried and true as Warner was—and Warner's eyes would have been gladdened at the sight. He may behold it with the eye of the spirit and if so his brave soul may know that it is because of him and others like him who held to the Republican faith in Missouri when it took a mighty courage to do so that the Republican party there is today the aggressive, militant and soon-to-be triumphant organization that it is.

New Hampshire Republicans in their platform declared that a protective tariff is "the only defense to our industries at the end of the era of stuporously prosperity caused by the European war." This is fundamental Republicanism, emphasized by present-day conditions.

Company of pretty girls and capable comedians and singers will close a very successful week. You still have today to see this funny chap, and the big program of pictures which accompany him.

Chief Carpenter E. W. Craig, the Ohio to Philadelphia, Pa., as assistant to naval inspector of hull material.

Local Officers Interested

Not a few of the officers attached to the local yard who have served in and about Cuba, showed considerable interest in the election which occurred there on Wednesday last.

Were Not on the Big End

The fact that the engines and the boilers for the U. S. S. Topeka will be built at some other place, and installed on the Great Lakes will leave a good part of that $174,000 allowed for fitting out the ship to the builders of machinery and boilers.

More Painters.

Four painters were called for duty in the Industrial Department today.

Two Games on Sunday.

The football team from the San Francisco will play two games at the yard on Sunday, the first with a team from Dover and the second, with a team of soldiers.

What the Board Said

The request of the navy department for information relative to the handling of submarines at the local yard brings to mind the part of the report made by the Board of Inspection, headed by Rear Admiral John R. Edwards in April, 1913, in which under the trend of development, the board had the following to say:

"In the back channel it is possible to develop extensive berthing facilities for auxiliaries. The system of piers which could be expeditiously developed on the northern and eastern portions of the station, while somewhat distant from the Hull shops, would be within fair access to the machinery buildings, as well as to some of the most important storehouses."

"The number of navy yards wherein the development of adequate berthing facilities can be efficiently, expeditiously and economically effected is extremely limited, and the back channel of the Portsmouth navy yard is probably one of the places where without incurring excessive expenditure, such facilities could be provided in an expeditious manner."

AUTO BARGAINS.

1915 Ford roadster or delivery, $285.
1911 Cadillac, $250.
1912 Cadillac, $350.
1913 Cadillac, $450.
1916 Cadillac, $1200.
At C. E. Downs, Bow Street.

RELIABLE Protestant Lady would like correspondence with working girls who contemplate boarding. Can accommodate four after starting. Terms reasonable. Address M. A. R. Herald office.

The city council did all their business last evening without fuss or fighting. In about fifteen minutes. The men with the courage to vote to pass the two resolutions over the mayor's head certainly had the interest of the citizens at heart.

HIGH PRICE FOR COAL IS UNWARRANTED

Philadelphia and Reading Co.
Trying to Maintain Stability of Market.

Philadelphia, Nov. 4.—That the present sensational talk of a coal famine and high prices for coal is without warrant, is shown in an interview given by S. C. Burton, manager of the Bell Coal Company, of Philadelphia, who brands the reports of a coal famine and increased prices as hysteria. "The New York market," said Mr. Burton, "is entirely different from that in Philadelphia. New York is a speculative market and coal prices there are much more likely to fluctuate than in Philadelphia. Small operators ship great quantities of coal to New York, store it up and often have to sell at low figures on account of overstocking. Then again the other extreme may be reached, as seems to be the case at present."

The manager of the Bell Company ascribed the high prices of bituminous to the scramble of the large corporations to secure enough to meet their demands. They bid against each other and sent the price soaring, he said. He added that he had plenty of coal on hand.

"What is the difference between the present price of coal and that of last year?" he was asked.

"Fifty cents. Forty cents were added on account of the tie-up last Spring during the deliberations between operators and miners. The other ten cents is put on on account of workmen's compensation. The customer also must take into consideration the fact that labor, feed and every item of expense in connection with running a coal business has increased greatly during the past few years. That will account for a normal increase in price. As for a sensational jump in the price of anthracite coal, I can see absolutely no need for it."

Mr. Burton gave much credit to the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company for maintaining the stability of the coal market in Philadelphia. He said the small operators showed a disposition to take advantage of such "hysteria" as that of the present to boost coal prices. The Reading corporation, he continued, was the greatest force in keeping the price of coal within the reach of the modest pocket-book.

"They refuse to be governed by such agitation as exists at present," he said. "It is probably because they feel they cannot afford to become a party to any squeezing of the public. Shortly after the big coal strike in 1901, when the price of coal had gone to $10 and more a ton, a representative of the Reading Company came to me and told me that if I would agree to sell their coal at its normal price, which was then $5.75 a ton, they would make an effort to take care of me in every way possible. The dealers who refused to do that got along in the best way they could, and were a secondary consideration to the Philadelphia & Reading Company."

UNCLE OF DEAD HERO FIGHTS CHANGING NAME

Norman Prince's Uncle Scores Lansing for Suggestion to France that "American" be Dropped in Flying Squad

Boston, Nov. 3.—The report from Washington that the state department on grounds of incompatibility with United States neutrality, will ask the French government to change the name of the "American aviation corps" of the French army, brought forth earnest protest today from Dr. Morton Prince, noted Boston alienist, whose nephew, Norman Prince, was recently killed in battle while flying for France.

Dr. Prince branded the movement for such a change of name as the work of "hypnotism" and he hoped the report from Washington was untrue, and declared if such request were made by the state department it would mark the one element that has retained any respect in France for the United States. In an interview Dr. Prince said:

"If the dispatch be true and the administration yields to the demand of the German hypocrites, it will be one more humiliation for Americans. That our government should not have raised its voice at the beginning against the violation of Belgium and the atrocities committed on land and sea, and against the methods of warfare of Germany—that break the international laws of nations and the moral laws of humanity—is something that cannot be understood in France."

"It was the abrogation of all that for which this country has hitherto stood."

In matter, he said, France and England feel that it is our duty to stand up for us to decide as to whether we should declared the feeling in France and England is still bitter because this country was passive on the violation of Belgian neutrality.

He also said that Americans in France are chagrined because, as he expressed it, "this country has done nothing to assert American rights before the eyes of the world."

"President Wilson's reference to Europeans at the beginning of the war as 'madmen' is another thing that has aroused indignation in France," said Dr. Prince. "They cry madmen? Does he call us madmen, we who are fighting for our homes and our families?"

"The feeling in France in regard to the Americans who are fighting for France is that they are also fighting for Americans as individuals as well as for the cause of humanity."

"Our administration may be too proud to fight for the honor of America and the rights of humanity, but these young men who have formed the American aviation corps and those who have joined the British and French regiments in the trenches have shown that the American spirit still lives and that Americans as individuals are not too proud to fight for democracy and the cause of mankind."

"The name of 'American aviation corps' was granted by the French government at the request of the aviators themselves, who were inspired by the old American spirit. If in response to hypocritical Americans this name is now protested by our government, that failed to rise to the opportunity and prevent the violation of Belgium and throw its moral support against the advances of the Hun, it will make a most painful impression upon the friends of the United States in Europe. I hope the press report is untrue."

Dr. Prince, who has just returned from France, declared today that Europe (referring to England, France and Belgium) does not want the United States to enter the war, because of sure would result as for the last time.

CABLE LETTER

Berne, Nov. 4.—The editor of the "Ticino Gazette," a Swiss paper which has supported the cause of the Allies since the beginning of the war, recently went to Germany to study the military and economic conditions in that country. On his return he writes:

"The French and English claim that the favorable reports about the German harvest were colored to deceive the world are unfounded. I have convinced myself that the crops are very plentiful throughout the Empire."

"The wheat harvested will last at least a year and the quantity of barley and oats on hand is larger than after the harvest of the first year of the war. The potato crop seems to be better the average, but there is an abundance of sugar beets and fodder for all kinds of cattle."

"As a result of the good harvest the number of hogs has increased by several millions since July and the fat and meat question steadily becomes less acute. Eggs, like butter, and all other fats, still remain scarce, but Bulgaria and Turkey are sending enormous quantities."

"The distribution of foodstuffs is organized perfectly and the missing articles like tea and coffee have been replaced by substitutes. Nobody complains of the high food prices, because all wages have increased correspondingly."

"German industry is in excellent condition. Factories are working day and night. There is plenty of coal and iron and the scarcity of nickel, rubber and other articles is not felt very much because German science has found substitutes."

"The fact that the largest part of the war expenses always flows back into the pockets of the people has created a favorable situation with Germany. The empire is far better off than the Allied countries, which have to get much of their food supply and war materials from neutral countries at an enormous cost. The war has impoverished Europe, but Germany has suffered least in this respect and will never break down economically."

"In different theatres of war the situation also remains favorable to Germany. Their lines in the east and west are unbroken and in their campaign against Rumania they are successfully repeating the sledgehammer tactics they used last year against Serbia. In Gallia they have stopped the costly Russian offensive completely and in Macedonia they and their Bulgarian allies hold the British, French, Serbian, Russian and Italian armies in check."

"The hope of the Allies to wear the German empire out through continuous attacks on all fronts cannot be realized unless they are willing to sacrifice millions of men. They are far more liable to become exhausted than the Germans, who are able to husband their reserves by keeping themselves on the defensive as long as they desire."

"Much as we may desire a victory for the Allies we cannot close our eyes to the fact that the realization of this wish seems almost impossible. As things stand today the crushing of Germany cannot be accomplished."

"The war has become a useless, senseless slaughter. It is the duty of the neutral nation to intervene and end the struggle by mediation, if he role, self-sacrificing France is not to bleed to death."

London, Nov. 4.—Cecil Chesterton is conducting a kind of debate on the subject of the United States with another publicist in the press here.

In his latest article he agrees with his opponent that no American feels that "blundering sorrow at the idea of a fratricidal war" between England and America which most Englishmen sincerely feel."

He continues:

"I have left out France deliberately because he would certainly regard that as more tragic and would feel some shadow of the sentiment which we supposed him to feel in regard to an Anglo-American conflict. But that as I say is understating the case. It is further true that at any rate until the rise of Japan, England was regarded in America not only as a potential enemy, but as the potential enemy."

"I do not mean that Americans hated England or desired war with England; but I do mean that they normally thought of the English as the people they had generally fought and might have to fight again. They thought, and to a great extent still think of them, as we thought of the French before the aggrandizement of Germany and the growth of the Entente."

"If you go into any of the humbler type of saloons in an American city you will almost certainly see prominently displayed one of two prints—generally both of them. One is 'George Washington Delivering His Farewell Address' and the other is 'Commander Perry Burning the British Fleet.'"

"It is just possible that you have forgotten that Commander Perry burnt the British Fleet. It is even possible that he never did. As a fact, I believe he burnt a small British squadron on Lake Erie during the war of 1812. By the way, I wonder how many English people remember that there was a war with America in 1812. All Americans remember it—perhaps not naturally since we burnt their capital."

"Such is the normal American attitude towards this country, and such its contrast with our illusions on the subject. Of course, there is an almost equal amount of illusion on the other side. Let me illustrate this by an incident which happened to myself. I was debating with a hypocritical American in New York on the subject of the European War, and I had quoted the opening sentences of the Declaration of Independence as a fair summary of the principles for which, as I maintained, the Allies were fighting."

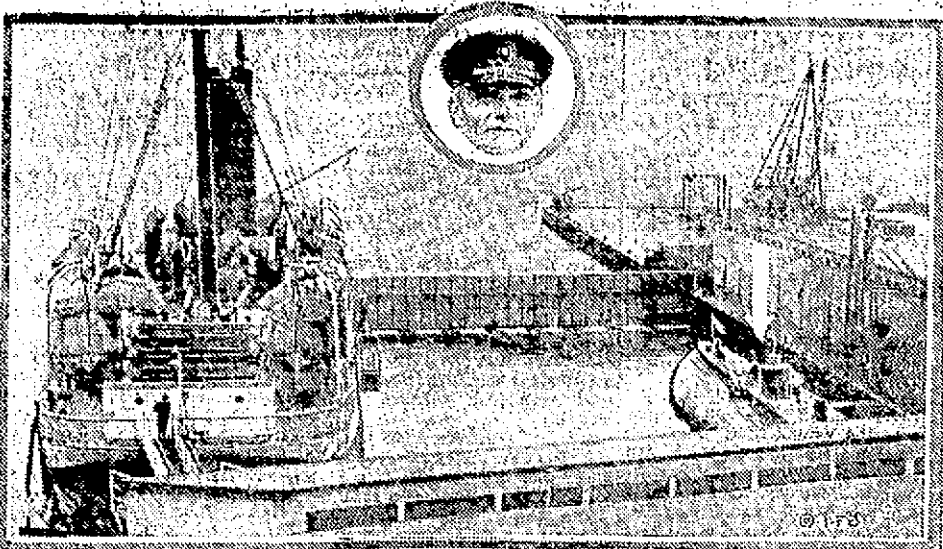

"A very sympathetic American came up to me afterwards to congratulate me on my speech and especially upon my magnanimity in quoting with approval a document which must be so odious to my countrymen. He went on to say in effect, that it seemed to him a good omen, and that he could only hope that the resentment of England against the proceedings of the late General Washington was somewhat abating."

"I do not think he believed me when I told him that it was only after reading American books on the subject that I discovered that England had any case at all in the War of Independence which my school history had taught me to regard as a simple struggle between American right and British wrong."

"Now if you grasp these truths in regard to the American temper, and consider their inevitable consequences you will realize another fact of the greatest possible importance. You will realize that the Anglo-Saxon-consanguinity-long-divided hands across the sea attitude is not only not reciprocated in America, but is actively resented there, and helps to increase the anti-agonism."

"What seems to us a noble magnani-

DEUTSCHLAND PROTECTED AS IF MADE OF GOLD.

CAPT. PAUL KOENIG

The Germans have forced in the merchant submarine Deutschland, which arrived at New London, Conn., Nov. 1 from Bremen after another remarkable voyage, as if she were made of gold. The arrow points to all there is of the submarine visible to the public. On one side is the state pier heavily guarded, and at the back a shed, which is guarded. Outside the German steamship Wilhelm, which had been interned in Boston harbor, protects her and a high board wall is swung into place from the back of the steamer to the pier. Captain Paul Koenig and his crew, now on their second successful submarine voyage to the United States, will live on the Wilhelm while in port.

"What seems to us a noble magnanimity—seems to the American simply a piece of damned insolence. "We don't think of the Americans as foreigners," said Mr. H. G. Wells in a recent controversy.

"I can imagine the effect of this sort of 'generosity' on a typical patriotic American, I can imagine him answering Mr. Wells somewhat as follows: "You overwhim me, Sir. You do me too much honor."

"In other words, sir, if you are thinking of doing us the undesecution to annex us, I guess that you will have to complete the little experiment which you left so unfortunately unfinished in Seventeen Eighty-Two."

ENLISTED MEN ARE COOL UNDER FIRE

That the commendable and heroic acts of the enlisted men of the navy chronicled from time to time are not always confined to such acts as are strictly in line with their accepted professions, was stated today by Chief Turret Captain L. G. Dahlin previous to his recall to the Boston office.

This was shown by men of the navy who were commended for excellent railroad work during the operations around Santo Domingo, Haiti. Here four men of the navy, attached to the U. S. S. Sacramento, did some great work with the railroad battalion so described by the report that was later made.

Upon the arrival at Puerto Plata of the same island, E. Hannon, chief machinist mate; H. McGregor, machinist mate, second class; and C. Alford and B. Hartwig, coal passers, all from the U. S. S. Sacramento, cheerfully performed arduous work on shore, at one time working on an engine continuously for 48 hours. Their discipline, behaviour and attention to duty reflects great credit not only upon themselves but on the commanding officer of the Sacramento.

The train at times was forced to advance under fire and these men were cool and courageous at all times. For the above work these men were sent letters of commendation by the secretary of the navy and they were also recommended for a higher rating.

Such work as this goes to show how valuable men of a trade are to the navy. Those without a trade can learn one while serving with that branch of the U. S. fighting force.

LOW BID ON TOBACCO OF NAVAL MEN

FOR THIRTY-ONE TONS, FOR WHICH 36 CENTS A POUND WAS PAID, 19 CENTS IS OFFERED.

New York, Nov. 3.—The highest bid for thirty-one tons of plug tobacco, bought by the United States Government for the navy, and condemned as below standard, was nineteen cents. The Government originally paid thirty-six cents a pound. The item was the largest in the annual sale of condemned stores yesterday at the New York navy yard. Whether the bids will be acceptable will be announced later.

Bids were also received for cut glass decanters and wine glasses which are obsolete under the Navy Department's ruling forbidding the use of intoxicating liquors on Government ships. The bids represented about forty per cent of the original cost to the Government.

$10,000 IF SHE CAN COOK
What Each of Three Granddaughters of New York Woman Will Get Under Her Will—Test Cases on Twenty-First Birthday—One Sister Has Earned the Prize.
New York, Nov. 3.—The will of Mrs. Marie Zinsner, filed here for probate, leaves $10,000 to each of three granddaughters on condition that she can cook an acceptable meal before her twenty-first birthday. If any of the girls fails in the domestic test her share reverts to the residuary estate which is left to three sons.
The three presumptive heirs are daughters of Dr. Hans Zinsner of Columbia University. A fourth sister received $10,000 last year after demonstrating her ability to cook and sew in accordance with the condition formulated by Mrs. Marie Zinsner's husband and continued by her after his death.
The girls who are prospective beneficiaries of this bequest are Miss Helen Zinsner of Bryn Mawr College, Miss Peggy Zinsner of Smith College and nine-year-old Margaret Zinsner, who lives in this city. Miss Ellen Zinsner of Smith, is the sister who has met the test.

BIG WOMAN VOTE IS UNCERTAIN FACTOR
Washington, Nov. 4.—About three and two-thirds million women will have the right to vote for President next Tuesday, a far larger number than ever voted before on any question in any country of the world. The big woman vote for President and the number of women in each state over 21 years of age, according to the last census, that of 1910, are as follows:

Over 21 Years
Illinois ..... 1,667,491
California ..... 671,356
Kansas ..... 439,934
Colorado ..... 213,425

NOTABLE RECORD FOR SERVICE IN THE CIVIL WAR

JAMES H. CHASE OF SOMERVILLE
A SOLDIER FROM EXETER WAS IN NUMEROUS IMPORTANT ENGAGEMENTS

James H. Chase, who passed through at least twenty battles in the Civil War without being injured, died Friday at his home, 243 Medford street, Somerville, Mass. He had been in poor health for some time. He was born at Exeter, N. H., in 1838 and enlisted in Company K, Second New Hampshire Regiment, May 27, 1861. Later he became a member of Battery K, United States Army. He was present at the first and second battles of Bull Run and he was also in the battle of Williamsburg, Fair Oaks, Seven Pines, Orange Grove, Charles City, Cross Roads, Malvern Hill, Gettysburg, Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Union Mills, Logansport, the Wilderness, Spotsylvania, North Anna River, Appomattox, Cold Harbor, Petersburg, Boyesen Plankroad, Hatcher's Run, Sailors Creek and all of the operations from April 3, 1865, to the surrender of the army of northern Virginia April 9, 1865. He was discharged as corporal from the United States Army, Dec. 11, 1867, his papers being marked "Character, very good; a reliable non-commissioned officer." He is survived by a wife, Mr. Chase was a past commander of Willard C. Kinsley Grand Army post of Somerville.

HOW WOMEN'S VOTES FIGURE IN ELECTION

Voted in 1912	Elec. Votes
California	13
Colorado	6
Idaho	4
Utah	4
Washington	3
Wyoming	3
First Vote 1916:
Arizona	3
Illinois	29
Kansas	10
Nevada	3
Montana	4
Oregon	5
12 states	91

New York, Nov. 4.—Political experts here say that slightly over a million and a half women will vote for President Wilson on Tuesday. This is far below the claims of the woman suffrage leaders, but is based on cold statistics and ordinary political arithmetic.

Women will vote in 12 states, but one quarter of the 48 of the Union. These states have 91 electoral votes. Taking the census of 1910 as a basis for an estimate, it is found there are today in the dozen suffrage states; 4,068,514 women over 21 years old and eligible to vote.

But, like her husband and brother, woman finds it hard to register. Indeed she finds it much harder than the man. Actual experience in the suffrage states shows that the introduction of "votes for women" only increases the number of voters by slightly over one half.

In Illinois where women vote for the first time this presidential election the female registration for various districts is between one-half and three-fifths of the male registration.

In the six states having suffrage in 1912, the total number of votes cast four years ago was 1,625,000. Slightly over one-third of these were women's votes. If one adds 55 or 60 per cent of the 1,758,000 votes cast in 1912 in the states which have introduced woman suffrage since then, as a fair approximation of the number of new woman voters, it is found that the number of votes to be cast by the women next Tuesday will be 1,600,000. At least this is the belief of the seasoned male political campaigners in this city.

A Famous Advocate of a Great Reform
The Eloquent Temperance Orator

PROF. JOHN A. NICHOLLS

Of Boston, Mass.

Prof. Nicholls is well known as one of the ablest, best posted, and most eloquent advocates of the Cause in the United States. To it he has devoted thirty years of study, research, and investigation. Ten thousand audiences have listened to him. His addresses are argumentative, logical and inspiring. He is now a conservative radical, careful of his statements, broad in his comprehension, philosophic in his mind, clear in his presentations, and always wisely impressive. His grasp of the liquor problem is fearless. He may be depended on to preach temperance truth in love and courtesy, but with unwavering fidelity.

FRANK W. KNIGHT SHOE TALKS

10 Market Sq. "Shoes of Quality." Portsmouth

MEN'S SHOES OF CHARACTER

Our Men's Shoes are a treat for the eyes as well as the feet. Our standards of price and quality are conscientiously uniform. Our prices are not reduced for one special day. Our patrons at all times are assured that they are buying good shoes at the lowest prices possible. Every day is a special value day at the Knight's Shoe Store and our fast growing trade convinces us that most people are finding out that it pays in the long run to buy good shoes at a dependable shoe store.

FASHION SAYS "SPATS"

And Spats it will be for Fashion has set her seal of approval on this innovation. We are showing a wide range of the favorite styles in Spats in various colors, quantities and prices. To go with them we have the various styles in low shoes and pumps. This combination adapts itself admirably to changing weather and has met with wide favor.

RIGGER INJURED.

Augustus Pavilki Meets With Accident at Navy Yard.

Augustus Pavilki, a rigger employed at the navy yard sustained a bad fracture of the right arm on Friday evening by a fall in the boat shop. He received first aid at the navy yard and was later sent to the Portsmouth hospital.

ENJOYABLE TIME.

Members of Knights of Columbus Hold Apron and Neck-Tie Party.

A novel party was given in the Knights of Columbus hall on Friday evening by Miss Margaret Doolan, Miss Elizabeth Kelley and Miss

John Shields. It was called an "Apron and necktie" party. The young men took the neckties out of a bag and matched them up with the girls wearing aprons of the same color. After a march they passed under a chandelier which showered confetti from Japanese lanterns and all received small flags as favors.

Mr. Walker Broffey rendered a few songs, accompanied by Miss Nellie Doolan on the piano. Refreshments consisting of ice cream and cake were served in the course of the evening and dancing continued until 12 o'clock. It was a very pretty party and all thoroughly enjoyed it.

EXPLAINED THE TERCENTENARY PROGRAM

Rev. Charles E. Burton of National Home Missionary Board Speaks at North Church Chapel.

Rev. Charles E. Burton, secretary of the National Home Missionary board of the Congregational denomination, addressed the prayer meeting of the North Church chapel Friday evening. He explained to those present the meaning of the "Tercenary program" as applied to Congregational churches, and how they hoped to enforce it. Instead of building monuments, which money could buy but which required no expenditure of thought, and instead of having elaborate exercises in Plymouth with brilliant addresses which only a few could hear, a nation wide movement was planned.

Renewed interest in the Pilgrim Fathers, their characters, their ideals, their religious zeal and devotion to the things which have endured is hoped for.

He spoke of bringing more people into the churches and of funds to help those whom the church must reach. He emphasized the force of claiming to be descended from Pilgrim Fathers and failing to realize the meaning of that heritage.

"In this age of materialism, of Godlessness, of thoughtlessness, of pleasure-loving, pleasure seeking times, he said, 'we have the same duties and responsibilities as the early settlers here so bravely. All should bear the voice of the cry as they heard it. Prepare ye a way in the wilderness, prepare ye the pathway of the Lord.'"

He is making a tour as are others in this interest and before June of 1920 every Congregational church in every state shall have heard the message either through their own pastor or some representative from the central board in charge.

This is what they hope to gain: (1) Pilgrim convictions applied; (2) Half million new church members; (3) Secure recruits for life work; (4) two million dollars for missions yearly; (5) a great memorial fund.

THE HERALD HEARS

That the local committee of the first department who handled the expenses of the state convention in September, will be about $20 to the good. That Child Labor Inspector Mitchell has been putting in a week in this city.

That he says he found several cases that required his attention. That Portsmouth has been hit hard for charity during the past five years but the old city always responds nobly.

That a great deal of complaint is heard about the digging up of the asphalt paving on Congress street by the contractors for the telephone company.

That a good many tax-payers believe that the company should have arranged for such improvements when the paving was put in.

That others believe the underground work could have been carried out by running the conduits through Chestnut and Porter streets.

That they also believe that if the line had to be run on Congress street, the contractors should have dug the curbing and not gone out so far in the highway until they reached the sea-hole at the head of Chestnut street.

That if the space dug up is not replaced in good shape, the company should relay new paving entirely from Middle to Chestnut street.

That the jury in the U. S. court will be obliged to return to this city after election.

That a private dancing party was held at the Knights of Columbus hall on Friday night.

That the main door of the building used by Ward One voters on Maplewood avenue looks like a circus bill-board.

That representatives of detective bureaus have been in this city hunting up business.

That the Great Falls hotel at Somersworth has changed hands again and the new owner is Frank W. Ward of Worcester, Mass.

That a Manchester telephone operator understanding "Sis, please," for "Gis," caused a surprise to an aristocratic district of the city, by despatching the police auto post haste in place of an auto from the intended garage.

That a waitress at one of the local restaurants will shortly become a bride.

That eleven New Hampshire post-offices, each of them in summer resorts, have been advanced from fourth to third class.

That Bert Davis, of this city, a trainman on the Boston and Maine, tramped from the caboose of a fast moving train at Ipswich, Mass., and saved a seven-year-old boy who was standing not more than 500 feet ahead of an oncoming passenger train, falling with him in safety into the ditch.

That the city of Manchester is to buy 1500 feet of land for $15,000 from the American Locomotive Company to avoid suit for damages in the widening of Elm street from West Valley street to Cove street.

That "The Wolf Woman" photoplay has been taboed by Mayor Bartlett at the Strand Theatre in Haverhill.

That Joseph Forgette, who is fighting in the trenches "somewhere in France" was on Friday divorced by his wife, Emilie, in the superior court at Portland. The couple were married seven years ago, and Judge Connolly granted the divorce on the grounds of five-year desertion.

That the new dimes look good to us but they will not buy as much as the old ones, that's sure.

That Newburyport gathered $104.16 for the Armenian fund.

CITY BRIEFS

"HOME"

The story deals with the affairs of a family that had suddenly become rich, which results in the usual thing—extravagance and a vulgar display of wealth. It takes their younger daughter, who has good common sense, to bring them all to their senses and make this home really a home and not a stepping place. Screened at 2.30, 7.00, 9.00.
